Camera's Viewpoint: Divine Solitude is the title of a 28-minute dance film that will be shown around town shortly in order to qualify for the 1986 Genie shorts category and it is worth catching at the Kingsway Theatre Dec. 2 at 9.15 p.m., the Fox Theatre, Dec. 3 at 9.15 p.m., or the Bloor Theatre, Dec. 4 at 9.30 p.m. Directed by Toronto's Jean Marc Lariviere, with cinematography by Peter Mettler, it documents the solo work of the dancer-choreographer Nana Gleason and shows how readily the camera devours pure movement.
